Family Service Association Hosts 'Bubbles 4 Autism' Event

GALLOWAY TOWNSHIP, NJ (April 18, 2017) – Children, parents and friends came together on Wednesday, April 12 to blow bubbles in support of Autism awareness and acceptance at New Day Family Success Center for Family Service Association's 'Bubbles 4 Autism' event.

"Bubbles bring smiles, signifying joy and hope," said Torrinn Bennett-Michael, Chief Development Officer at Family Service Association of South Jersey. "Events like these are a fun way for everyone to support inclusion, awareness and make new friends."

'Bubbles 4 Autism' started in 2004 at Ventnor Elementary School as an activity that Kyle Mosca, a preschooler with autism, and his classmates could do together. Now in its 13th year, the bubble-blowing has become a global initiative to educate others about autism and help them get to know people who see the world a little differently. It is celebrated in April, which is National Autism Awareness Month. For more information, visit www.faces4autism.org.

Stacey Lear, Volunteer and Community Partnership Coordinator at New Day Family Success Center in Galloway, is surrounded by bubble-blowers at the Easter-themed 'Bubbles 4 Autism' event Wednesday, April 12.

Improving the quality of life for individuals and families in our community.
